

2 Years, 7 Months

It has been 2 years and 7 months since the last post I wrote for this blogging site. Although I have earned considerable points writing here, I chose to move on and write for quite a while with another blogging platform to further the exposure of our great online business COMPUMATRIX. (blogging platform COMPUMATRIX)

The last post I wrote here was: Building Businesses With Assistance. This article talked about starting businesses properly with entity structuring and using resources. Since that article was written, we started a business and it has already been more than 2 years since its demise and ultimate FAILURE!

Although I'm still paying off the debt from that venture, we learned valuable lessons. The first lesson is to be sure the lines of responsibility are definitely defined. I will never put myself in a position of owning a business and forced to run it when I KNOW NOTHING ABOUT THE BUSINESS!!!!

On February 3, 2016, I wrote the blog post: Langrope's Last Ride. It was the day after my sister Renee (desertgal) passed away. Although I had a hard time each time a COMPUMATRIX member passed, my sister's passing made all the other member that passed before her more meaningful. Each and every member that has passed is the loss of another family member.

I may have learned a new meaning of the word: PATIENCE, I always lean on something our Founder, Henry James Banayat, left with me. His inspiration expand beyond the business of COMPUMATIX as he desires us to build other businesses as well. He inspired me to do something more with Real Estate and use this avenue to assist others with viable solutions to housing problems.

With this in mind, my plans for the future are so far beyond what I could do in my lifetime. When I do see our long awaited funds, there will be so much to do. I am reminded every day from other family members of COMPUMATRIX of their goals and planned sharing of their dreams.

I know, SOON, VERY VERY SOON, I will be busier than a one legged man in a fanny kicking contest!!!!
